Hi, my name is Ben Lee. I work as a consultant for SCR.

I remember when I started at this company. My job used to be very stressful, but it's not anymore. I got a promotion last week. I have my own secretary now. I don't need to answer the phone anymore, I don't have to schedule appointments, and I haven't got to buy lunch because my wonderful secretary does all of these things for me.

But there are some bad points. Yesterday, just as I was leaving, my boss came in and gave me more work. It was a report and I had to finish it by 10 pm. At around 9:30 pm just as I was about to finally finish the report I accidentally deleted it. It took me another two hours to retype it.

Part 5: Role-play

Task: Role-play the situation below:

Time: 5 minutes

Partner 1: (Friend) You used to live in Japan. Now you live in America and work for an American company. While you are in Japan for a business trip you bump into your friend.

- Catch up with your partner.
- Talk about what you used to do / still do / don't do anymore.

Partner 2: (Friend) You haven't seen your friend in ages. Now you have an exciting job.

- Ask them about their life and tell them about yours.
- Talk about some interesting things you've done.
- Express a lack of understanding if they say something you don't understand
- Finish the conversation.
