Read the passage and circle the new words as you find them

- Good evening. Welcome to "What's your job?." Today, let's talk to Claire Cooper. Claire is a photographer. He takes pictures of many different things. Claire has some photos to show us. Let's look at them. Hello Claire. What is this photo?
- This is a photo of an ostrich. An ostrich is a kind of large bird. They live in Africa. Africa is a continent to the south of Europe.
- I see. What's that picture?
- This picture is of an emu. An emu is also a large bird, but it is different to an ostrich. Emus live in Australia. Australia is a hot and dry country.
- I see. What about this one?
- This is a picture of a marmoset. A marmoset is a kind of monkey. I took this picture in the rainforest in Peru. Peru is a country in South America. Look at the marmoset. It has a banana. I think monkeys like bananas.
- I do too. What's this one?
- Here is another picture of a bunch of bananas. Look closely, can you see?
- See what?
- There is a tarantula in the bananas! A tarantula is a kind of spider. Do you like spiders? I don't mind them, but I prefer snakes.
- I like snakes. Do you have any pictures of them?
- Sure. Here is a picture of a snake. This snake is a boa-constrictor. A boaconstrictor kills its prey by squeezing it.
- It's a nice picture. Do you only take pictures of animals?
- I like taking pictures of animals, but I prefer taking pictures of people. This is a picture of my mother, Janice. Janice has a glass of Irn-Bru. Do you know what that is?
- No, I don't. Sorry.
- It's a drink from Scotland. Janice likes drinking Irn-Bru, but she prefers a cup of tea.
- Do you have any other pictures?
- Sure. Here is a picture I took of my friend George. George is a teacher at an elementary school in Brighton. Do you know where Brighton is?
- No I don't. Sorry.
- It's a city in the south of England. George works in a small elementary school. Can you see what he has? That's right, it's a banana!
